ANOTHER BURGLARY-$1,000 IN SILVER WARE STOLEN- ESCAPE OF THE BURGLARS .- We mentioned POLICE COURT. vesterday that the house of Hugh Wilkins was GEORGE W. JOHNSTON, JUDGE. Monday, September 12.
The Case of Ingles alias Norton, the Forger.

robbed, on Sunday night, of money and jewelry amounting to several hundred dollars. About three o'clock, on yesterday morning, the residence of Capt. Abert, on Sixth street, was entered through the second story window, by means of a ladder, and a watch and silver plate, of the value of upwards of $1,000, stolen. The burglars, for there were two or three, passed through Mrs. Abert's apartment, and a'so through Capt. Abert's. and thence into a room adjoining, where the plate was kept. They no doubt returned the same way, yet none of the inmates were awakened. The bold fellows were, however, seen afterwards. Policeman Dick Moore, about 4 o'clock in the norning, observed two men coming towards him. on Chestnut street, above Fourth, where he was sitting, and apparently ladened with plunder. He told them to stop, and one of them responded by dashing some forks, spoons, &c., in his face, which caused him to fall over. The men broke and fled in different directions. Moore gave chase to the fellow who went up street. In his flight he was so closely pursued by the officer that he found it expedient to drop his booty, consisting of two eavy silver waiters and other ware; and having relieved himself of this weight, soon distanced Moore, who is considered fleet of foot, The officer returned, and finding Capt. Abert's name on the silver ware, went to his residence, awakened the family with difficulty from a sound sleep, and gave them the first intimation of the robbery. The other robber escaped with his ever, that he did not know all of the members share of the plunder. Capt. Abert offers a reward of $100 for the return of the stolen ware, or a proportionate sum for any part of it.

GRAND CONCERT OF MAD. VARIAN JAMES .- It gives us great pleasure to announce to the citicens of Louisville the concerts of Mad. James, on Thursday and Friday evenings. We do so from the fact that we anticipate a great musical treat, one which can be attended by all and appreciated by all. We know not how we can better express our opinion, in regard to this gifted American cantartice, than by copying some extracts from the Cincinnati Press, as follows:

"The debut in this city of Mad. James! was as complete a triumph as we have ever witnessed within the concert room. Before she gave utterance to a single note, the graceful form and sunny smile more than half captivated her audience, who, at the conclusion of her operatic Aria, one f Verdes "most sparkling productions," "I Lom-ardi," were satisfied that not only a beautiful yoman, but a gifted and consummate artiste was sefore them. Mad. James is blessed with a voice of singular sweetness and refreshing purity. The upper notes are exquisitively soft, but they possess that full, round quality which combine force and power with their silver texture. Nature has been most prolific, but the fair cancatrice has the advantage of having been educated in the high school of art, the Italian school, the finest as it is the most classic. Each succeeding piece served but to establish the claim of the charming debutante to the foremost position in the beautiful but arduous profession she has chosen.
The exquisite romanya from "Roberte," in itself one of the most delicious gems of music, was rendered with thrilling effect, but the coming tri-umph was reserved for the last, when the enthu-siasm of the audience was stirred to the top of its pent by her execution of the celebrated Aria from "La Traviator." There was more than one triumph last night, for Mr. W. H. Cooke, of whom we were led to expect much, proved himself a most excellent vocalist and an accomplished ar-tist. He is quite young, but in his solos evinced a thorough knowledge of his art. In his duetts with Mad. James, he, if the expression be not out of place, let himself out, and fairly earned a all share of the applause. His voice has tha peculiar tenderness of expression so uncommon in the English or American tenor, and which is [Reported Expressly for the Louisville Courier.]

The prosecution in this case preferred the charge of forgery and uttering checks, by which W. E. Snoddy, a merchant of this city, was swindled.—
The latter testified that he first made the acintance of Alex. Norton on board the steamer rchild, in November last, and was induced to believe that he was a partner in the house of Rochford, Brown & Co., of New Orleans. In Janinto a business transaction with witness, giving him a $10,000 draft on the firm in New Orleans and receiving therefor one negro boy at $1,250, two Hardin county bonds, numbers 73 and 33, of $1,000 each, and also the due bill of witness for $6.150. Norton also was to share in the profits of a pork operation, and $1,000 was deducted from the draft for it. Merely to accommodate the man witness gave him the cash and premium for a $1,500 and a $300 draft on the same house. These dratts were returned protested as forgeries.— Witness produced the Hardin County Railroad Bond, No. 73, which was got by Officer Brigh at the time he arrested the prisoner in Chicago.— The whereabouts of the other bond witness knew only from information, which was not testimony; dentified Ingles and Norton as the same person. At the time the forgeries were perpetrated the accused was rather slender; he is now much neavier; he wore side whiskers, but no moustache; had no difficulty in making the negotiation, as witness had undoubted confidence in the man. vings Institute, stated that he knew the signature of Rochford, Brown & Co, and pronounced the drafts which were shown him forgeries. Letters were then shown him with the genuine signature of that firm, which he recognized. He said, how-Capt. Zach. Sherley identified the accused as the man introduced to him by Mr. Snoddy, as Alex. Norton, in January last, at the L., F. & Lex. R. R. depot. Went upon the cars and paid him considerable attention as the friend of Mr. Snoddy Recognized him in court as the same man; but was expecting to do so; otherwise, might have passed him five hundred times and not known im. Examination resumed—Witness talked with two years ago, and remember that he showed a double upper lip in laughing, also that his arm was defective. In January he was thinner than now, and wore a moustache; think that he wore whiskers all around his face; am very confident he wore a moustache.

Mr. S. W. Gale, R. C. Snoddy, Hugh Isler, Jno
Gettry, Sol Hart, and John Credan severally Gettry, Sol Hart, and John Credan severally testified that they recognized in the accused the man Alex Norton, who was here in January.

J. M. Chenoweth stated that W. E. Snoddy rought Alexander Norton into his store, and introduced him as a merchant from New Orleans.— He then wore what witness would term "Presby terian whiskers." (A laugh.)

The prosecution here offered the protest of the drafts, but the Judge refused to admit them as testimong. Mr. Elliott then said a witness by whom he could prove the signature of Rochford, Brown & Co., was absent, and he desired the case laid over intil Wednesday, a request which was granted DRUNK AND DISORDERLY .- Sam'l Sware and An make were arranged for being drunk and fighting on the street, and drawing a noisy crowd around them. [From the New York Tribune of Friday.] This morning, between 2 and 3 o'clock, the Har onia Hotel, in Hudson Street, between First and Second streets, Hoboken, was discovered to be on fire in the basement story. An alarm was imme diately sounded, and the firemen appeared with their usual promptitude, and forced an entrance in to the building. It was found impossible, howev en, to reach the upper stories, where the occupants slept, owing to the dense smoke and heat which filled the house. There were at the discovery of the fire eight persons in the house, viz: Messrs. Baise & Kapp, proprietors; Mrs. Baise and her four daughters, and the barkceper. Of these, Mr. Kapp, who suffered greatly from a sore hand, appears to have been kept awake by the pain, so that when have been kept swake by the pain, so that when the alarm was sounded, he escaped with comparative ease, after arousing Mr. Baise. The latter, and one of his daughters, 16 years of age, appear to have made an attempt to escape, but, being overcome by the suffocating atmosphere, sank down and died in the hall, just within the threshold of their apartments. Two other daughters, aged 14 and 9 years were found in hed, having aged 14 and 9 years, were found in bed, having unconsciously passed out of existence. Mrs. Baise and her eldest daughter escaped, by leaping from a window upon the piazza, where they were rescued by the firemen. Mrs. Baise, in her leap, cut her head and sprained her arkle badly; her mother escaped without injury, as did also the barkeeper. Or. Chaibert was in readiness to direct the efforts for their resuscitation, but their endeavors proved it the hotel last night, which did not break up un til 1/2 a. M. The people in the house then retired thoroughly worn out with their labors, and were locked in their first sleep when the fire was disovered. It was at least half an hour after rond the billiard saloon, on the first floor, yet the heat and smcke were so dense throughout the house that the veneerings peeled off and the paint olistered under its influence. He died worth several millions. As a laborer he was noted for his faithfulness, his industry, and the amount of work which he could perform. At the whip-saw he was unequalled, and on many occasions he cut down the timber and split out five hundred rails a day. In the palmiest days of his popularity and wealth he never ceased to boast his achievements as a laborer. He studied law, while a laborer, at night, the light of the fire; and when first admitted to the bar he gave but small promise of attaining the position which he afterwards won. A NOBLE MOTHER-NARROW ESCAPE.—As the morning train from this place to Chicago came near Rock river bridge, on Monday last, the engineer, Robert Waugh, discovered a little girl at play on the track. He sounded the whistle at its highest, sharpest note, and used every possible effort to stop the train. The little child kept moving atong on the track, apparently frightened by the whistle, but did not leave the track. The mother of the child, who lived in a house near by the whistle, but did not leave the track. The mother of the child, who lived in a house near the bridge, seeing her child in danger, made a spring to save her, and, rushing in front of the engine, caught her child and fell over the opposite side. The engine brushed her clothes as she fell, and passed on a short distance before it could spring to save her, and, rushing in front of the engine, caught her child and fell over the opposite side. A Detroit Sen ation Item—A New York Merchant in Pursuit of his Wife and Lover—He Finds her and Forgives Him.

A Detroit Detective a few nights since received dispatch from Mr. D. S. Hawkins, of New York, requesting him to arrest his wife, who had eloped with a lover, and who were then on the approach-ing train. The Free Press relates the result, the sband following the guilty parties on the sec ond train:

He was a man of very gentlemanly appearance and manners, and stated that he was a merchant and the possessor of a fine property and ample income. They lived a few miles above the city, on the North river, where an elegant residence and all the luxuries of life contributed to make a happy home. His wife was beautiful and ac complished, and, after five years of wedded life he believed himself the possessor of all her affec-tions, and in return lavished upon her the wealth of an undivided heart and a well-filled purse. She was indeed faithful so far as outward ob-servance was concerned, but in her heart had nceived a violent passion, or rather allowed herself to be over-persuaded into an attachment for a young man in her husband's employment. The partner of her infidelity was a clerk who had always enjoyed the confidence of Mr. Haw kins-a handsome, dashing fellow, who in the exercise of full liberty to act as chaperon to his air lady at numerous hops, boat-rides, picnics by his winning ways and seductive pleading, so unsatisfied spirit drove them to covet, with a rash and reckless feeling, the absence of all fa-miliar objects. They desired to be alone with

The husband, overwhelmed with the denouund means to trace them directly to this city They ran away like children, caring for nothing out to place distance between them and home, and consequently were as easily traced, for detectives on the present day are as sharp as bloodhounds in the track. Having told his story he was in-formed that the means of recovering his wife lay within immediate reach, and having signified hi o find the place to which he had taken the lady tient husband, and in a short time he drew up i front of a plain two story house on Congress street, on which had the modest sign of "boarding" on the front, and the name of Mrs. Martin on

A hasty rap brought the girl to the door, which was no sooner opened than the husband pushed in, and demanded to see the lady boarder. He was told that she was up stairs. The noise of trance and talking alarmed the lady, for they struck the right lead, and as he sprang up stairs she confronted him at the top, in dire astonish-ment and dismay. There was a scene, as there alsibility and awakening again to a terrible reality, amid tears and protestations. The husband stood with folded arms, regarding her intently and with but few words, until the paroxysm passed, and then quietly requested her to prepare for another journey. She was compelled speedily to leave her efuge and return homeward, which she did with out a last word with her lover, who, perhaps for tunately for himself, was absent from the house, and did not meet the husband whom he had a ronged. The latter seemed disinclined to gain a Sickles notoriety, and made no effort to find him -taking, perhaps, the wiser course of the two.

They went home last night. dent of the Worcester Spy, writing from the Profile House, White Mountains, Sept. 3, 1858, says: "On Monday last, a boy, some 12 years of age, by the name of Streeter, living in the town of Lis-ton, about two miles below the Francona Iron Works, on what is called the South Branch of the Ammonoosuc river, went into a pasture near by, to catch a three years old colt that had been in the habit of jumping. To prevent him from indulg-ing in that habit, his head was tied down to one of his fore feet with a rope. The boy untied the rope from his feet; the knot was a slipping noose, and he, probably thinking it no harm, put the noose over one of his wrists. From some cause, the colt ran, throwing the boy to the ground. He went with almost lightning speed, throwing the boy at times higher than the colt's back. He finally stopped, and the people who saw it rushed o his assistance; but it was too late-the poor li the fellow gasped once or twice after they came to the spot, and immediately expired."

A Fugitive Husband—A Wife Deserted—Spiritualistic "Inaffinity."

[From the Troy (N. Y.) Daily Wing of Tues 'ay.]

On the 16th of July last, the following paragraph appeared in the columns of this paper:

"The wife of a prominent merchant (a spiritualist) of this city, has asked able counsel in respect to the modest but warmly pressed request of her husband that she should quietly leave his "bed and board," on account of "incongeniality of temper," or to speak more precisely, for the lack of "spiritual affinity" between the twain. of temper," or to speak more precisely, for the lack of "spiritual affinity" between the twain.—

This is the way the story runs; which, if true, goes to show the peculiar tendencies of so-called spiritu-

From the time of the appearance of the above to the present, we have been apprised, both by rumor and less directly, of this case. Last week the affair reached a denouement not unexpected, but melancholy indeed, and as concerns an inter-esting family, deplorable.

The wife has remained firm, yet courteous and conciliatory. Last week, the husband, wife, and three children—daughters, aged respectively, 15, 14, and 7—went North en a visit to either friends or relatives One day the husband proposed a carriage ride of an hour for the family. The children were made ready by the mother, and she prepared to go herself. The husband drove up to the door, the children were helped into the carriage, when he suddenly discovered there was no "reom" for his wife and statted of promising iage, when he suddenly discovered for promising room' for his wife, and started off, promising the absence should not exceed an hour. Arriving in Troy, she immediately proceeded to her residence, 47 Third street, and there found persons in possession—friends of the husband—praparing to remove the familian, in The pinane had already been carried from the house. She immediately applied to her legal adviser, who immediately applied to her legal adviser, who were twith her to her house, and a brief and friend-ly consultation with those in there ended their operations, and the lady was left in charge of the emises, and remains so still.

It has been ascertained that the husband and children proceeded directly to Schenectady, and took the cars west, it is believed, from that city. No tidings have been learned of them.

The husband claims to be worth at least $16,000. No tidings have been learned of them.

The husband claims to be worth at least $16,000. His wife, robbad of her children, was left by him entirely without means, and, it we may judge by circumstances, he designed to leave her without a home. The evening papers of Saturday and the Whig of Monday morning contained a notice of the dissolution of the business firm to which the fleeing husband belonged. The dissolution was dated on the 1st of September, and appeared for the first time on the 3d. It is probable the man designs to make his absence permanent.

There is a long, sad story connected with this affair, the main facts and circumstances of which we have been familiar with for several weeks. The parties were married in Albany by Rev. Dr. (now Bishop) Kip, about seventeen years ago, and re-sided here for quite a number of years. After-wards they resided in Stockport, Columbia coun-ty, returned to Troy, and then removed to Beloit, Wiscon in, where they resided some time, when the husband, becoming discontented, returned to Troy in pursuit of business. He found an open-ing for his capital and business capacity in one of he most extensive and respectable erns on River street, and improved the opportu-ity. Meantime, his family remained at Beloit, with the view of following the husband to Troy n the spring.

Letters passed between the husband and wife uring his absence from his family. The hus-and's letters, (which fortunately have been pre-erved,) are, to speak mildly, the man's bitterest ccusers, and the woman's vindication. In one, e commences by alluding to the fact that the ime is rapidly approaching when they are again o live under the same roof, as busband and wife, and says his heart is weighed down in view of the prospect. He speaks of the "matrimonial boud-age," "the worst of slavery in existence," that they have endured for the past sixteen years.—
The circumstances that placed us there (he says)
we are both too well acquainted with, and I deem t unnecessary for me to say that, after the parental restraints and tortures were removed by our marriage, all the enchantments we call love, vanished, and left us two icebergs, chained together,

Reading Matter on Every Page. Law and Order in Baltimore. We are glad to notice that the citizens of Baltimore, without distinction of party, are making strong efforts to crush out the spirit of lawlessness and rowdyism which has for the last few years disgraced that city.

A mass meeting, composed of the merchants, mechanics and professional men of the city, was held last Thursday, to devise means to rescue the city "from its present condition, and restore the supremacy of law and order." The meeting was very largely attended, and a most determined oposition manifested against the desperadoes who have so long controlled the city.

We earnestly hope that the citizens of Baltimore may succeed in their noble effort to redeem their city from the misrule of the clubs, and trust that the independent ticket which they have nominated may be triumphantly elected. But to secure success the people of Baltimore must turn out and vote, and measures must be adopted to secure a peaceful election. A peaceful election and a full vote, and law and order will again assume the supremacy in Baltimore.

cle in our Saturday's issue, which, taken disconnectedly, would create the impression that we were opposed to the Kansas-Nebraska act, and regarded it as pernicious in its effects. We certainly did not intend by our remarks to convey any such idea. In the paragraph preceding the one quoted by the Journal, we qualified our decaration in these words:

What act of peculiar devotion to the South years, and what do his boasted services in the past amount to with the modern interpretation which he gives to his pet measures? His favorite Kansas-Nebraska Act, as he explains it, is a farce and a cheat; and the repeal of the Missouri Compromise an act of unnecessary legislation.

Then comes the paragraph to which the Journal replied. Qualified by what precedes it we think no one can misunderstand that the drift of our argument was that the Nebraska-Kansas Act. with Douglas' interpretation, was a sham and a cheat.

The Cincinnati Enquirer, it seems, has been endeavoring "to carry water on both shoulders." The other Cincinnati papers charge it with having smuggled the 23d of February speech of Judge Douglas in the weekly edition, and excluded it from the daily. The Commercial accounts for the strange course of the Enquirer as fellows: The editor of the Enquirer being engaged in a wild bunt" for the Postoflice, did not publish that speech in his daily paper, but smuggled it into his weekly. The editor knew that his weekly did not circulate in Washington, and hence had the courage to allow that sheet to contain the speech. Perhaps Mr. Douglas has a high opinior of this sort of tactics.

The Cincinnati Esquirer says Judge Douglas' speech in that city, a few nights since, was one of the greatest efforts of his life. On the other hand, the Commercial regards his effort as commonplace, says Judge Douglas was distressed by a sore throat, and distressed his audience, and that the crowd continued to dwindle from the time he commenced until he concluded his speech.

Hon. C. C. Clay has recently made a very able speech at Huntsville, Ala., in which he declared that he would not support Judge Douglas for the Presidency, even though he should receive a unanimous nomination from the Charleston Convention.

The Madison Courier a Black Republican paper, seems to be delighted with Douglas' squatter sovereignty article in Harper's Magazine .-It says "Judge Douglas has only to take one step more to find himself a Republican.'

Voice from the Democracy of the North. We publish below a masterly and unanswerable article, on the vital issues of the day, from that

readers: DOUGLASISM FOR 1860-"NOW YOU SEE IT-NOW YOU

LON'T SEE IT."

We have amply shown that Douglasism for 1856 was founded upon the renewal of slavery agitation, the opening Northern territory for the in-gress of slave property, and that both were accomplished by obtaining a repeal of the Missouri prohibition on the ground of its unconstituti ality. These were the points upon which the entire question in the Kansas Nebraska debate hinged. What then were the logical cousequences of this repeal? The Missouri Compromise acts were declared unconstitutional, because slaveacts were declared unconstitutional, because slavery was prohibited in a portion of the common territory by the force of those acts. The motive, therefore, was to give all the organized and unorganized territory of the United States the same legal capacity under the Constitution, in regard to the subject matter of dispute—slavery. By the repeal, then, of these acts, the inevitable legal and logical consequences would follow, viz: first, that slavery, by virtue of the Constitution, could have existence in territory from which it had been heretofore prohibited; and second that Constitution, could been heretofore prohibited; and second that Constitution, could have existence in territory from which it had been heretofore prohibited; and second, that Congress had no power to prohibit slavery from any erritory in the United States.

To these principles, established by Congres

To these principles, essentiated by congressional action, with their logical consequences, Mr. Douglas was fully and irrevocably committed, along with the Democratic party, and the great triumph was recorded in this emphatic summing up, that "it is the true intent and meaning of this act not to legislate slavery into any Territory or State, nor to exclude it therefrom." The practical operation of this principae was at once illustrated by a slave emigration to Kansas, and a struggle between the pro and any interver particular. struggle between the pro and anti-slavery parties struggle between the pro and anni-slavery parties for the possession of its Territorial government. Now let us go a step further and ask, what will be the value of this principle to the South, and what to the nation as a peace measure, if, as a logical consequence, the slavery question is to be the subject of Territorial struggles? By force of Congressional enactment and by virtue of the non-prohibitive power of the Constitution, Southern men owning slave properly were invited to settle in common with Northern men without slave property in any Territory. Accepting this priv-ilege, its whole value would consist in the right to hold such properly without problection with to hold such property without molestation until Federal authority would be replaced by a State organization. If not, if at any time prior to the for-mation of a permanent government, a power could be exerted which would deprive the South-ern man of this right or render it insecure, then indeed the principle would be fruitless of value to the South-a mere delusion and a snare, and to the nation, instead of being a pacifying measure, the nation, instead of being a pacifying measure, it would be the means of exciting a pro and anti-slavery contest, to be followed in every Territory by the terrible and bloody scenes which made Kansas notorious over the world. If the possi-bility of unfriendly Territorial legislation or insurrections would frighter Southern men from emigrating with their slaves, they are as much excluded from the benefits of this greatly vaunted repeal of the Missouri Compromise as though it yet stood inviolate on our statute book. If they are, however, willing to brave all risks and engage in the contest, every session of the Territorial legislature, as to the pro or anti-slavery party legislature, as to the pro or anti-slavery party may predominate, must become the theater of that bloody violence, fraud and disgrace which rendered Kansas so infamous in 1856. Is this to be called spacification, a finality of the slavery agitation, the logical consequences of the Kansas bill—and the glorious results of popular sovereignty—of Douglasism for 1860?

Of course such was not the intention nor the avanctation of Southern men when they voted to expectation of Southern men when they voted to establish the principles of the Kansas-Nebraska act, otherwise no man of the South would have tolerated such a deception for an instant, nor would any honorable man from the North have been guilty of voting for a cheat and a delusion in the pame of a principle. from the North have been guilty of voting for a cheat and a delusion in the name of a principle based upon equity and good faith. But Mr. Douglas so interprets those principles, that by them power is given to the inhabitants of a Territory, so soon as a Territorial government is organized, to legislate for or against the holding of slaves, and in effect to deprive the Southern man of his property with which he was invited to settle by the establishment of these very principles, and in effect to deprive the Southern man of his property with which he was invited to settle by the establishment of these very principles, and the settle by the establishment of these very principles, or drive him from the Territory after having deluded him with the logical and legal constitutional inference that he could remain without fear of molestation from any quarter, so long as a Territorial form of government existed. In other words, in his view, the whole value of these principles, so far as both the North and the South are concerned, is to depend solely upon the accidental political character of the settlers, and subject to the changeable influences of temporary Territorial legislation. If this be true, then, indeed, the whole legislation of 1854 was a monstrosity, an iniquity, and a shame, prolific of discord among the settlers, and a miserable deception upon the Union. But such is Douglasism, which the people of the North are called upon to accept, and the for a cheat and a delusion in the name of the settlers, and a miserable deception upon the Union. But such is Douglasism, which the people of the North are called upon to accept, and the party to adopt in 1860!

And now we ask, turning aside all fear of contest or discord among the people of a Territory, should this power be granted to them, what will the North gain by the Kansas Nebraska legislation, if Douglasism is founded upon the legal content. the North gain by the Kansas Nebraska legislation, if Douglasism is founded upon the legal consequences of that legislation? It may be said, without fear of contradiction, that north of 36 30, the Missouri Compromise line, there is no territory susceptible of slave settlement with profit, and almost with the same truth it may be said.

that south of that line Northern immigration has no inducements sufficient to invite it in any pre-ponderating numbers. Hence to the north of the line the privilege of legislating against the introduction of slavery is a mere begatelle, an empty popular bubble and delusion. And in the South the privilege of legislating in favor of slavery would find no opposition. Free States would be made to the North and slave States to the South, just as though the Missouri line still existed. at a proper respect for the actions, motives, and purposes of men laboriously and honorably en-gaged in legislating for the welfare of the people, will not permit us to base an argument upor the inutility of their legislation merely for the purpose of refuting an interpretation to which it as been subjected. The right to emigrate wit ave property to all of the Territories, was not atended to be a delusion or an unmeaning privi-TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1859. ege, neither in respect to the geographical locaion nor Territorial legislative action. It was a privilege intended to be indistructible and un-questionable while the Territorial form of govament remained; not to be curtailed, disparaged or rendered precarious in any event until the sovereignty of State government had given, or was about to give, permanency to what had be-fore temporary and changeable. In this view alone the South acceeded to the principles of non-intervention, being fully satisfied to rest the question, in every portion of our vast Territories, to the action and determination of the people when prepared to assume the prerogatives of a State and this was the meaning and intent of the last part of the passage of the Kansas-Nebraska act, from which we have already quoted, viz, The absolute certainty of fitting the mouth renders "but to leare the people perfectly free to form and regulate their domestic institutions subject more than half the width, getting a better fit, and During the whole discussion of this bill it was never eren hinted by its supporters that a Territorial Legislature could constitutionally prohibit lts extreme lightness renders it particularly adapslavery—that they could do an act in the Territo-ry of the United States, which the very same bill prohibited Congress from doing on the ground of its being unconstitutional. The Missouri line with, we would say that if they will give us a trial was repealed because it prohibited slavery in a clared to be an unconstitutional exercise of power and of course those who held that doctrine would never have submitted even to an intimation that a never have submitted even to an intimation that a handful of people in a Territory derived thereby power to do constitutionally what would be unconstitutional for Congress. Nor is this all that can be said as to the denial of such a power. Mr. Douglas and all those who supported the bill consistently and persistently voted against and defeated all propositions of the enemies of the bill granting such a power to the people of a Territory. So that by construction and by actual logislation such a power to the people of a Territory. So that by construction and by actual legislation, that power which is now claimed was never intended to be granted, and was actually refused to a Territorial Legislature. Hence Mr. Douglas has been guilty of double dealing either in Congress, or he is now playing bopeep behind the last provision which we have quoted. He either regarded all Territorial legislation tending to prohibit slavery as absolutely unconstitutional, or pretended to hold that "being subject only to the Constitution of the United States" meant that the Constitution of the United States" meant that the United States Supreme Court would necessarily interfere against the assumption by a Territorial Legislature of any and all unconstitutional powers on that subject, and thus render such legislation if attempted a nulity. Had he annced other views, he would have been classed with Giddings, Chase and Campbell, the oppnents of the Kansas bill. That he did not do then, was a part of Douglasism for 1856; that he has since done so is a part of Douglasism for

[For the Louisville Courier.] Street Railroads.

Editors Louisville Courier: The attempt at hasty egislation of some of the members of the Comnon Council, at its last meeting, upon the introof the street railroad ordinance, has aroused a feeling of deep anxiety in the minds of many citizens as to what will be the action of that body at its next regular meeting. We cannot un-derstand why an ordinance of such vital importace to the city should be hastened through the council without due deliberation by its members t certainly deserves as much consideration as is iven to ordinances to pave a sidewalk, or arrest drunkard. Had Mr. Gilliss' ordinance sprung om his brain, symmetrical and full fledged, a oper regard for public opinion would have compted, at least, sufficient delay to allow other upitalists to enter the arena. Our monied men ould have time to investigate this subject, and to nderstand the large profits accruing from such an aterprise. Wherever street railroads have been troduced, they not only pay, but pay largely and certainly there is no city in the Union where the rails could be put down at less ost than Louisville. Some of the Eastern companies are paying 20 per cent. upon their net profits, besides a specific tax of twenty dollars pon each car, per annum. If, then, other municipal bodies can drive such good bargains for their cities, and the companies even then realize large fortunes, what will be thought of our city fathers if they SELL the city to a company of gen-tlemen, no matter how worthy and substantial, (and I would here remark none are more so than ose whose names were presented to the co for six per centum upon the net profits of the roads? Would they not be held up to the derision and ridicule of every intelligent business man in the community? Is there a member of either board who could be caught driving such a trade for himself? If he invites propositions to build a house, or construct a bridge, does he hastil close in with the first offer? or does he delay little to see if batter bids will not be offered? sterling Democratic journal, the Philadelphia Pennsylvanian. We indorse every word of it, and solicit for it the attentive perusal of our products. in operation most of the omnibuses, a large number of backs, and many private carriages will be dispensed with. These now pay no inconsider able amount into the City Treasury.

Will the interests of the city be properly guard ed by this ordinance? Not quite so well we think as the company's chartered by it. Section 12th of the ordinance says: "The Main street track shall be commenced within twelve months from the passage of this ordinance." Now we all kno the passage of this ordinance. Now we all know the Main street road will pay large dividends upon the cost of construction. Any party renew-ing the privilege will commence with alacrity and speedily complete the Main street road, but what will become of the Jefferson, Walnut, First, Fourth and Ninth streets tracks? Are we to wait until the company, in the plenitude of thei charity, will sacrific some of their Main stree profits to construct and equip non-paying routes? There is not one word in the ordinance coercin a company to put down any track, save the Ma street one, this si le of the Day of Judgment. We enter our protest against the city being thus handed over to the tender mercies of any company. How far this ordinance will conflict with the franchises of the Louisville and Portland road, w do not know, nor have we the time now to in restigate. We have but little sympathy with its management, and only allude to it to caution the Council against immature legislation, from which may result heavy damages to the city. We are now, and have been for a long time, in favor of Louisville introducing street railroads. Indeed, they are only opposed by those irrevocably ost in the mire of forwism. Such is one yeal for ost in the mire of fogy sm. Such is our zeal for them, we are not willing to defer—as this ordinance provides—the commencement of the enter prize for twelve months. The parties receiving e privilege should be required to construct the cannot wait a twelve month the breaking of the ground. We have no interest, directly or indi-rectly, with any party or parties desiring to con-struct these roads, and have only made these sug gestions from motives common to our fellow-cit zens, and the prosperity of Louisville.

SIXTH WARD. SINGULAR FRIGHT .- A negro man named Jim belonging to the steamboat Taney, on the Alabama, was drowned a few days since, not far from Mobile. The Register gives the following particulars: It appears the cabin boys were carrying break fast up the steps leading from the cook-house to the cabin of the Taney, and Jim was at the cooking stove or range, when the steps above gave way, fell upon the stove, and upset a pan of boil ing water, besides breaking the stove. The boy hought the boiler of the boat had exploded, and in his fright jumped through a small window, scarce two feet square, into the river, and was drowned. MARRIED. On the 11th inst, at the Waluut-street Methodist Episcopal Church, by the pastor, Rev. J. D. Owens, Mr. HROMAS H. WINSTANDLY to Miss LOUISA A. MARKHAM, all
